

A Teacher's Guide to the Award-Winning Books by PHILIP C. STEAD AND ERIN E. STEAD

ABOUT THE ARTISTS

Author and artist Philip C. Stead and illustrator Erin E. Stead are a dynamic duo who have created a variety of award-winning and notable picture books. Their stories and art appeal to young readers because of the themes they address, the eye-catching illustrations they contain, and the potential of personal response they evoke.

Erin E. Stead is the illustrator of the 2011 Caldecott Medal book, A Sick Day for Amos McGee, as well as Bear Has a Story to Tell, an E.B. White Honor Book. She has also illustrated acclaimed picture books And Then It's Spring and If You Want to See a Whale, which Booklist called "breathtaking" in a starred review. She also illustrated the forthcoming Lenny & Lucy, written by her husband Philip Stead. She and Philip live in Ann Arbor, Michigan.

Philip C. Stead is the author of the 2011 Caldecott Medal book, A Sick Day for Amos McGee, as well as Bear Has a Story to Tell, an E.B. White Honor Book. Books that he has written and illustrated include Creamed Tuna Fish and Peas on Toast, Jonathan and the Big Blue Boat, A Home for Bird, Hello, My Name Is Ruby, and Sebastian and the Balloon, which received three starred reviews and was lauded by Kirkus as being "full of whimsy, heart and delight." Philip lives with his wife, illustrator Erin E. Stead, in Ann Arbor, Michigan.

ABOUT THE GUIDE

This guide is intended to enhance children's reading experience, as well as promote the acquisition of skills and strategies.

PRE-READING AND RESPONSE STRATEGY

The following books are highlighted in this guide with a pre-reading or response strategy:

Lenny & Lucy by Philip C. Stead; illustrated by Erin E. Stead.

Peter and his faithful dog, Harold, have moved to a lonely new house. In search of friends and someone to guard the scary bridge, he creates Lenny and Lucy who provide companionship and comfort until a new friend comes along.

Strategy: Have students draw a friend they would want to build or create, listing what materials they would use and the characteristics of their new friend.

Special Delivery by Philip C. Stead; illustrated by Matthew Cordell.

Sadie discovers that mailing an elephant to her Great-Aunt Josephine is going to take a lot of stamps, so she decides to find another way that involves a plane, an alligator, a train, some bandit monkeys, and a lot of determination.

Strategy: Ask students to decide what they want to mail and to whom. Next, have them design a stamp and determine how far it needs to travel and how much it will cost to mail that object.

Sebastian and the Balloon by Philip C. Stead.

When Sebastian launches himself on a journey in a hot air balloon made entirely of Grandma's afghans and patchwork quilts, his boring day turns into the adventure of a lifetime.

Strategy: Create a chart and record each "problem" that was encountered in the story, and then next to it write down the "solution."

Hello, My Name Is Ruby by Philip C. Stead.

Ruby, a very small bird in a very big world, is looking for a friend, so she introduces herself to a variety of animals.

Strategy: Before reading ask students, "How do you feel when you meet someone for the first time?" As you begin reading, ask, "What is your first impression of Ruby?" Then at the end of the story, have students talk about their experiences meeting a friend for the first time and what kind of things they learned from that friend.

To attain specific Common Core grade-level standards for their classroom and students, teachers are encouraged to adapt the activities listed in this guide to their classes' needs. You know your kids best!

If You Want to See a Whale by Julie Fogliano; pictures by Erin E. Stead.

Advises the reader what to do and not do, in order to successfully spot a whale, such as wrapping up in a not-too-cozy blanket, ignoring the roses, and especially being patient.

Strategy: Revisit the book after reading the story and ask students to list all of the things from the story that you should do and not do to see a whale. Then use this list as a poem that is similar to the text in the book but doesn't provide the rationale, just the advice.

Bear Has a Story to Tell by Philip C. Stead; illustrated by Erin E. Stead.

Bear, with the help of his animal friends, remembers the story he had hoped to tell before the onset of winter.

Strategy: After reading Bear Has a Story to Tell, draw a circle and have students write Bear's problem and the animals he encounters around it. At the point in the story when Bear wakes from hibernation, continue writing the animals he met, finally arriving back at the beginning when Bear is ready to tell his story. Explain to students that this is an example of a circle story.

And Then It's Spring by Julie Fogliano; illustrated by Erin E. Stead.

Simple text reveals the anticipation of a boy who, having planted seeds while everything around is brown, fears that something has gone wrong until, at last, the world turns green.

Strategy: Introduce And Then It's Spring by discussing the four seasons. Next, generate a list of words with students that describe spring, particularly focused on the colors that are associated with this season.

A Home for Bird by Philip C. Stead.

Vernon the toad takes the silent Bird on a journey in hopes of finding Bird's home.

Strategy: Discuss with students: What kind of animal is Vernon? Why does Bird remain silent? Why does Vernon help Bird find his home?

Jonathan and the Big Blue Boat by Philip C. Stead.

When Jonathan's parents decide that he has gotten too old to have stuffed animals, they trade his favorite bear, Frederick, for a toaster.

So he sets off aboard a boat, looking for Frederick.

Strategy: Before, during, and after reading, have students pay close attention to the collage, pen-and-ink, and acrylic paintings. Create a list of the documents that are incorporated into the illustrations such as maps, stamps, postcards, and news articles.

A Sick Day for Amos McGee by Philip C. Stead; illustrated by Erin E. Stead.

In this Caldecott Medal-winning story, friends come in all sorts of shapes and sizes. In Amos McGee's case, all sorts of species, too! Every day Amos spends time with each of his friends at the zoo—running races with the tortoise, keeping the shy penguin company, and even reading bedtime stories to the owl. But when Amos is too sick to make it to the zoo, his animal friends decide it's time they returned the favor.

Strategy: At the conclusion of the story, ask the following questions: Describe Amos's daily routine. What is the first thing he does? The last? What happens to Amos's routine one day? Why do Amos's friends go to him? What details do you observe in the illustrations that add to the story (such as the red balloon)?

Creamed Tuna Fish and Peas on Toast by Philip C. Stead.

In this toe-tapping, hand-clapping romp of a picture book, Wild Man Jack is not easy to please, and there is one dish that he particularly dislikes.

Strategy: Before or after reading, write down a list of foods that students don't like, and then categorize them, such as fruits, vegetables, meat, etc.

OTHER STRATEGIES TO USE BEFORE, DURING, OR AFTER READING THAT ARE ALIGNED WITH THE COMMON CORE STATE STANDARDS:

BEFORE READING:

- Word Walk: Before reading aloud a story, skim through the picture book and identify words that might be unfamiliar to students and define them.
CCSS: RL.K.4, RL.1.4, RL.2.4
- Think Now: Provide students with a thought-provoking question before beginning to read the book such as, "Why do you think friendships are important?" Give them 3-5 minutes to write their response or to discuss it with a partner. Have students share their responses prior to beginning the story, and then revisit them once the story is concluded.
CCSS: RL.2.7, RL.3.7
- Prediction: Show the book cover and read the title. Have students predict what they think the story will be about.
CCSS: RL.K.7, RL.1.7

DURING READING:

- Investigating Illustrations: As students read each picture book, have them look at the illustrations to discover the ways that the Stead's extend the story through their art.
CCSS: RL.K.7, RL.1.7, RL.2.7
- Turn and Talk: As students read or hear the story read aloud, pause periodically for them to turn to another student and discuss, "What do you think will happen next?"
CCSS: RL.K.4, RL.1.4

- Read and Respond: Have students fold a piece of paper in half. On the left, they record key statements from the book and then respond to them on the right-hand side.
CCSS: RL.1.1, RL.2.1, RL.3.1

AFTER READING:

- Read and Retell: After a picture book is read aloud, have student retell the story by sharing what happened in the beginning, the middle, and at the end.
CCSS: RL.K.2, RL.1.2, RL.2.2
- Fact or Fiction? After reading several books by the Steads, ask students to suggest three things that make the stories fictional.
CCSS: RL.K.5, RL.1.5
- * Think-Pair-Discuss: At the conclusion of the story, have students write down two connections they had with the book. Next, have them discuss these connections with a partner to foster interaction and highlight different perspectives.
CCSS: RL.1.1, RL.2.1, RL.3.1

THEMES IN BOOKS BY PHILIP C. STEAD AND ERIN E. STEAD

FRIENDSHIP: And Then It's Spring; Bear Has a Story to Tell; Hello, My Name Is Ruby; A Home for Bird; Jonathan and the Big Blue Boat; Lenny & Lucy; Sebastian and the Balloon; A Sick Day for Amos McGee

JOURNEY: Hello, My Name is Ruby; A Home for Bird; If You Want to See a Whale; Jonathan and the Big Blue Boat; Lenny & Lucy; Sebastian and the Balloon; Special Delivery

HELPING OTHERS: Bear Has a Story to Tell; A Home for Bird; Sebastian and the Balloon; A Sick Day for Amos McGee; Special Delivery

ANIMALS: And Then It Was Spring; A Home for Bird; A Sick Day for Amos McGee; If You Want to See a Whale; Special Delivery

QUEST: Creamed Tuna Fish and Peas on Toast; Hello, My Name Is Ruby; A Home for Bird; If You Want to See a Whale; Special Delivery

PATIENCE: And Then It Was Spring; Hello, My Name Is Ruby; A Home for Bird; If You Want to See a Whale; Jonathan and the Big Blue Boat; Special Delivery

Discussing and exploring themes in books provide an opportunity to look across a variety of titles and to respond using several strategies.

COMPARE & CONTRAST

Have students select two or three books containing the same theme, such as friendship.

Using a Venn diagram or other graphic, have students record how the books are alike and how they are different.

Students can also write their responses in sentence form:

(Title)_____ and (Title) _____ are alike because they both _____ and _____. The way they are different is _____.

Another difference is _____.

CCSS: RL.1.9, RL.3.9

THEME POEM

After reading several books under one theme, have students write down a list of words or phrases about that theme or directly from the text in response to the stories. Then label the poem, such as "Quest" and write the list of words and phrases to create the poem. For example:

Quest

Searching

Looking

Problem

Solution

Do not

Hello

Chugga, Chugga, Chugga

RL.K.4, RL.1.4, RL.2.4, RL.3.4

WRITING STRATEGIES

GENERATING TOPICS

Picture books by Philip C. Stead and Erin E. Stead provide excellent models to assist young writers in thinking about the topics that authors (and people) write about and how stories are crafted. Read and discuss the following books to help children understand topic selection:

And Then It's Spring by Julie Fogliano and illustrated by Erin E. Stead: Sometimes people write about planting a garden and waiting patiently for the plants to grow and for spring to arrive.

Hello, My Name Is Ruby by Philip C. Stead: Sometimes people write about their desire to have a friend.

Lenny & Lucy by Philip C. Stead and illustrated by Erin E. Stead: Sometimes people write about how difficult it is to experience new things.

A Sick Day for Amos McGee by Philip C. Stead and illustrated Erin E. Stead: Sometimes people write about very special friendships.

Special Delivery by Philip C. Stead and illustrated by Matthew Cordell: Sometimes people write about trying to solve a problem with the help of others.

Next, create a chart to list what people write about using these books and others that students read. The chart can be used as a resource when students complain that they don't know what to write.

CCSS: W.2.3, W.3.3

EXPRESSING AN OPINION

Before beginning, define opinion and then briefly share examples of an opinion about a topic relevant to the Stead books, such as friendship. Give students an opportunity to talk about their opinions. Have students select one of the Stead books and write their opinion about it using the following structure:

Write the author's and illustrator's Name(s)

Write the title of the Book

Write your opinion of the book

(interesting, funny, exciting, sad, scary, happy)

Why? Back up your opinion

Write about your favorite part from the book and why it's your favorite

Conclusion

This book is _____.

CCSS: W.K.1, W.1.1, W.2.1, W.3.1

SMALL MOMENTS NARRATIVE WRITING

Read several books written and/or illustrated by Philip C. Stead or Erin E. Stead that show small moments—a moment in the story that is stretched out over several pages, such as in Hello, My Name Is Ruby (introducing herself to a variety of animals), Jonathan and the Big Blue Boat (his parents trade his beloved bear for a toaster), or Bear Has a Story to Tell (Bear tries to remember his story). Refer to the illustrations to emphasize how this moment was stretched across pages. Next have students select a small moment from their own life and write a narrative in which they recount two or more appropriately sequenced events that include details regarding what happened (using temporal words to signal event order) and provide some sense of closure. For emerging writers, create this narrative together by using an example from a book or one from a student.

CCSS: W.K.3, W.1.3, W.2.3, W.3.3

ADDITIONAL STRATEGIES THAT PROMOTE RESPONSE AND SUPPORT VOCABULARY DEVELOPMENT, COMPREHENSION, AND VISUAL LITERACY

OPEN-ENDED QUESTIONS

Questions that have more than one right answer or can be answered in many ways are called open-ended questions. When an open-ended question is asked, the child's answer may be one that is unexpected. Language use as well as creativity is stimulated by asking open-ended questions, and students realize that there can be several different answers to a question.

Examples of open-ended questions:

- What do you think?
- How do you know?
- Why did you think that?
- What are some other ways that the character(s) could have solved his/her problem?
- What can you tell me about . . . ?
- What do you think would happen if . . . ?
- What does this story remind you of?

- What do you think will happen next?

CCSS: RL.K.1, RL.1.1, RL.2.1, RL.3.1

PICTURE WALKING

Reading the illustrations enables all readers to participate in the discussion and to increase their language and visual literacy skills. Explore the illustrations in each book and discuss:

- What do you see?
- What colors are in the illustration? How do they make you feel?
- What is your favorite illustration? Why?
- What do you wonder when you look at the illustration?

CCSS: RL.K.7, RL.1.7, RL.2.7, RL.3.7

RECOMMENDING BOOKS

Have students write the sentence below on a sticky note to recommend a book.

I like _____ (title) because_____.

Place the note on the inside of the book. When other students read the same book, have them write their own recommendation on a sticky note and place it in the book as well.

CCSS: W.K.1, W.1.1, W.2.1, W.3.1

CONNECT WITH THE ARTISTS:

PHILIPSTEAD.COM

•

NUMBERFIVEBUS.COM

•

ERINSTEAD.COM

THESTEADCOLLECTION.COM

Guide was written by Cyndi Giorgis, Dean of the College of Education at University of Texas, El Paso.

For a detailed description of the common core standards used in this guide please visit www.corestandards.org

NEAL PORTER BOOKS
Roaring Brook Press

macmillan
children's publishing group

mackids.com