ABOUT THE BOOK
Anna Casey’s Place in the World is the story of a young girl's trials and triumphs as she tries to find a home. With warmth and humor, Fogelin has created a memorable character in Anna, who must deal with the loss of her family and adjust to living in a foster home. Feeling abandoned and alone, Anna turns to her closest companion, her explorer journal. With the help of a scrawny new friend named Eb, Anna discovers a sense of belonging…and her own place in the world.

THEMES
• Adoption/Foster parents
• Friendship
• Health
• Conservation

A NOTE FROM THE PREPARER
Anna Casey’s Place in the World is a wonderful look into the hearts of foster children. It looks at the difficulty of being a foster parent and the needs of children who have been abandoned. The story is very touching and has a complexity level that would be appropriate for middle grade reader. Most of the issues are those common to middle schoolers such as friendships, moral issues, bullying, and appearance. The book could also be adapted to older readers with issues of conservation and the Vietnam War.

BEFORE YOU READ
• Students should discuss adoption and foster care and why it is appropriate in certain cases.

AS YOU READ
• Students can share their knowledge of friends or family members who have been adopted. Ask them to explain the differences this person may feel compared to others who have always had a place to call home.
• In a group discussion, ask students what type of problems may someone who has lived in many places encounter?
• Ask students if they think friendships are easy to make when someone has moved frequently?
• Discuss child abuse and why it is appropriate to put a child in foster care when they are being abused.

AFTER YOU READ
• Have the students explain if Anna finally found her place in the world. Support with details from the story including:
  Why or why not?
  Did Miss Dupree do the right thing by giving up Anna?
  From Anna’s experiences, would you say Miss Dupree was a good foster parent?
  Did Miss Johnette do the right thing by adopting Anna?
• Ask the students if they have a collection they would like to share with the class.
  Why do they have this collection?
  Can they explain why Anna had a collection of rocks and maps?
• Have the students look at conservation.
  What can they do to help save our planet?
  If the school does not recycle, encourage the students to start a program.

CURRICULUM CONNECTIONS

LANGUAGE ARTS
Have the students keep a journal of their daily lives. They can also add illustrations like Eb did in the explorer notebook. Some topics of interest could be a description of their bedroom, home or the neighborhood in which they live, etc.

SOCIAL SCIENCE
• Have the students use a map and a compass and let them find their way from one place to another.
• Research local rocks and compare them to the karst rock found in Tallahassee.

MATH
• Let students have a thrift store sale. Mark some items as new and full price and others as used and discounted. Divide the classroom into groups and allow each team to compete for the thriftiest buyers. Afterward, donate the clothes to Goodwill or another charitable organization.
• Have the students bake a cake. Let them measure the ingredients and verbally quiz them on how much would be half or double the recipe.

HEALTH
• Have student’s research asthma. Be sure they look for answers to the following:
  What are some symptoms of asthma?
  What are some treatments?

What are the effects on running?
Discuss the following questions with the class:
  Why did Eb use an inhaler after he finished running against Jemmie?
  Was Jemmie correct in saying Eb could overcome his asthma?

VOCABULARY
Give each student a copy of Vocabulary Worksheet #1 (Chapters 1–8) and #2 (Chapters 9–18) at the back of this guide.

REVIEWS

“Anna has inner pluck and outer charm: she’s been through a lot, but knows what needs to be done. Evocative descriptions bubble up from a deep reality…and places are found, if not the ones both kids thought they wanted.” —Booklist

“This is a thoughtful coming-of-age story and Anna is an intrepid heroine to whom middle school students will be able to relate.” —Kliatt
